Letter Reference for all correspondence: PCTA/CNL

Dear Sir/Madam,

I am writing this letter to inform you about developments at Pearson Clinical & Talent Assessment (PCTA), your trusted global test publisher and psychological assessment & intervention solutions provider in India and the subcontinent.

While we have been catering to the assessment needs of professionals and institutions, we have noticed recent activities related to the sale of our products that are unethical and illegal. Several current and prospective customers of our products have brought to our attention instances of unscrupulous vendors/professionals who have tried to misrepresent our products and approached other professionals and academic departments with the intention of selling/distributing/sharing our products.

No part of Pearson publication of assessments may be reproduced or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic or mechanical, including photocopy, recording, digital or any information storage and retrieval system on any messaging, social media, email platform without the express written permission of the copyright owner. Such activities are unlawful and open them up to legal action from Pearson. As a first step, we are in the process of issuing legal notices to such vendors.

To prevent any inconvenience to your practice/institution, kindly make a note of the below legal information and share the same with your colleagues and your departmental procurement team:

Pearson India Education Services Pvt Ltd (Pearson) is the sole owner, publisher, copyright holder, proprietor and supplier of all Pearson psychological assessment titles mentioned in its worldwide and India product catalogues and websites (such as www.pearsonclinical.in), that are available for purchase in India and the Indian subcontinent. No other company/distributor/individual is authorised to sell the Pearson titles in India and the Indian subcontinent other than Pearson.

Pearson India Education Services Pvt Ltd is the legal entity for Pearson Clinical & Talent Assessment (PCTA) in India and issues all legal tenders, quotations and invoices for government and private institutional procurements, as well as for individual purchases.

Kindly cooperate with us in our efforts to bring high-quality psychological assessments to you by reporting to us attempted procurements of Pearson products from sources other than our office. Furthermore, if you come across any arrangement/proposal for Pearson products through any other entity other than Pearson, kindly contact us and bring these instances to our notice immediately so that we can take the required legal action against erring parties.

Please contact us at info@pearsonclinical.in | +91-9513666500 for any clarification you may need, quoting the letter reference. Visit www.pearsonclinical.in to browse our products and request a quote.

Warm Regards

Mr. Philip Kurian,
Country Manager and Director,
Pearson Clinical & Talent Assessment, Bangalore.
